2. I have informed Miss Bigas, of the office of Chairman Young, Presidential Adviser on Personnel Management, that CIA does not wish to include a repeal of its statutory home leave provisions in the proposed new Government leave statute as originally requested by us. The proposed repealer would require an amendment to Section 5(a)(1) of the CIA Act of 1949, and I stated that we would prefer to include any such amendments in a separate bill of our own which we had in contemplation. Miss Bigas asked me to send a letter to the Bureau of the Budget revising our previous letter. SCPA 1955

MEMORANDUM FOR: Legislative Counsel

SUBJECT: Proposed Amendments to the Annual and Sick Leave Act of 1951, as Amended

1. The attached draft of proposed amendments to the Annual and Sick Leave Act of 1951, as amended, has been reviewed by representatives of this Office.

2. It is noted that the proposal would effect four principal changes in the Act.

(a) Provision of the same leave benefits for persons recruited or transferred from, or normally resident in, United States Territories or possessions outside the area of employment as the law now provides for persons recruited from the continental United States.

(b) Removal of the 45 day maximum accumulation now provided for employees serving overseas which has the effect of establishing a uniform limitation of 30 days for all employees under the Act.

(c) Provision of the same travel without-charge-to-leave benefits to persons returning to United States Territories or persons outside the area of employment on leave as the law now provides for persons returning to the continental United States on leave.

(d) Extension of the "home leave" benefits to all employees; the actual amount of "home leave" to be authorized is left to the discretion of the President, provided he does not exceed a maximum rate of one week for each four months of duty overseas.

3. It is recommended that the Agency support these proposed amendments. The extension of "home leave" benefits to Agency employees has been one of our proposals for the past several years. The reduction of the 45 day accumulation is consistent with the extension of this benefit. The other two changes offer no foreseeable problems for Agency employees with respect to leave.
